About two years ago, a test gave the scientists an interesting point. In the test, they painted stripes on horse models to test "biting flies." It showed that flies had trouble landing on the fake horses with stripes on. In this study, the scientists felt that the stripes make it hard for flies to land on horses.

Here comes another question: Why don't all horse-type animals have stripes? The scientists have found out the reason was because many biting flies usually live in the same places where zebras live. That's why zebras have stripes. Now that it is pretty sure to say that stripes can help zebras keep away from biting flies. The scientists will try to find out how biting flies treat striped and non-striped animals differently.

stripe 條紋 attract 吸引 land 降落 striped 有條紋的
 non-striped 沒條紋的

- () 36. Which is the best title for this reading?
 (A) A New Study: Horse Models and Biting Flies.
 (B) How Zebras Fight Dangerous Animals?
 (C) Watch Out: The Trouble of Biting Flies.
 (D) Why Do Zebras Have Stripes?
- () 37. What does camouflage mean in the reading?
 (A) Keeping away from biting flies.
 (B) Hiding from biting flies.
 (C) Helping them to cool down.
 (D) Making other animals hard to see them.
- () 38. What can we learn about in the reading?
 (A) Zebras usually live in hot and wet places with lots of biting flies.
 (B) The test showed the flies had trouble landing on striped horses.
 (C) The scientists are very sure stripes help zebras attract mates.
 (D) The study has showed how flies treat striped and non-striped animals differently.

When it comes to zebras, many people have long had this question in mind: Why do zebras have stripes? Scientists have thought about many possible reasons: that the stripes are the camouflage for zebras to hide their bodies, so that other dangerous animals won't be able to see them, to help them stay cool, or to attract a mate.

Chase rainbows

A rainbow is a beautiful arc(弧) of color that shows up after the rain. You can't touch a rainbow or hold it in the hands because it only comes from the sunlight in the air. So when we say someone chases rainbows, this person is going after something impossible.

Blackball (someone)

The word has appeared since the 1700s, when club members used white and black balls to vote. The black balls meant "no" and the white balls meant "Yes." People voted by throwing a black or white ball into a box, so that they didn't have to give any reason for voting "No." If you got a blackball in the vote, that meant you were not welcome to join the group. vote 投票

See pink elephants

To see pink elephants is a way to say "drinking too much leads to an unclear mind." This comes from Jack London's novel, when a guy drinks lots of wine and says he can see "blue mice and pink elephants." If you start to see pink elephants, that means you have to stop drinking.

To get the green light

There are traffic lights everywhere. We have already known the red light means "stop" and the green light means "go." When we see the light turns "green", we will start moving ahead. Today, "to get the green light" means you get the right to do something.
