When a man with no money asks for your help, what would you do? You may do nothing just like many of other people. However, Josh Coombes wants to change that.

Josh's job is to cut people's hair. One day in New York, he saw someone cut hair for men with no home. This inspired him, so after he went back home in London, he started #DoSomethingForNothing, a plan about making time to care about the people around us and cheer them up.

Josh cuts hair for the homeless after work. He believes a simple act can cheer people up. To him, giving money is one thing, but doing something is different. He doesn't want anything back. He just hopes more people to join in.
