São Paulo an Alpha World City

São Paulo is the largest city in South America and is centered around Praça da Sé. It is a very busy place and is rich in culture, parks and museums. The subway there is convenient but it covers only a few parts of the city.

The famous places in the city include the different lifestyles with Italian, Japanese or Arabic cultures. They have their own specialties and it is a lot of fun to walk around, go to one of the restaurants or have a drink somewhere.

When people live and work in São Paulo, they call themselves Paulistanos. Those people are well-known for working to enjoy delicious food. Food in São Paulo is the best in the country. You can find it from lots of different restaurants from the simplest places to the finest ones.

The traffic in São Paulo is heavy, especially in main streets all along the weekdays and gets worse at rush hours (from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.). São Paulo is also very much a party town. On the weekends, traffic is even worse in the middle of the night when people at the parties return to their homes.

Today, lots of famous people do charity work to make the public notice some problems around the world. But this idea is not new at all. The actress, Audrey Hepburn, had worked as an ambassador for UNICEF from 1988 until her death in 1993.

In Hollywood, more and more stars talk about problems of the world in public. This works successfully! Because when they do so, it is much easier to get the attention from the public. People will become interested and want to help. For example, Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt are often seen in the news for their charity work. In 2006 when Jolie was having a baby, she let People Magazine post their photos, so they could raise enough money to help the poor in Haiti. Here are more examples of people trying to make the world a better place.

LEONARDO DI CAPRIO

In 2007, Di Caprio made a film, 11th hour. It's about how human beings hurt the environment badly. He thinks that global warming is the biggest problem for the Earth. That's why he chooses to take a plane with ordinary people instead of flying on his own plane.

GEORGE CLOONEY AND MATT DAMON

At the Cannes Festival, George Clooney, Matt Damon, and Brad Pitt raised 5 million dollars for the people at Darfur wars. After Matt Damon saw the poor in Zambia and South Africa, he wanted to help other parts of Africa, too. He made a film, Running the Sahara, to raise the money for building clean water programs in Africa.

SCARLETT JOHANSSON

In 2001, Scarlett Johansson didn't go to the Oscars. Instead, she chose to visit India and Sri Lanka for the charity. "It is strange to come home when you see people living without enough food and care," she said. "It's strange to be famous, but this means I can help a lot of people."
