Plastic stuff is around us all the time. Why do people need plastic so much? Before people used plastic, life wasn't as convenient as it is now. People in the old days used wood, glass, or metals to make tools. Some of the things were heavy. However, some of them were fragile, like glass, people have to hold it carefully, or it may break into pieces. They might not last long or be easy to carry or use. Later, people found plastic stuff, and the word "plastic" came into our dictionary. Because plastic stuff lasts longer and not fragile, a lot of plastic stuff appeared in our everyday life. Sadly, plastic stuff led to some serious problems to the Earth, so people began to think twice about using it.

In Taiwan, we have laws for the use of some plastic stuff. For example, in 2019, a law went into practice: stores and restaurants cannot give away plastic straws for free. Also, in 2030, there will be a ban on all plastic bags and one-time-use plastic tableware from stores. We hope these laws will help us build a good habit of bringing our own shopping bags and tableware, like chopsticks or spoons, and make our world better by using less plastic stuff.
