An old man called his son, who he hasn't seen for a long time, and said, "Jeremy, your mom and I are getting a divorce; both she and I think forty years of misery is enough.

"What are you talking about, Dad?" Jeremy asked.

"We have grown tired of each other. We don't even talk anymore. We don't see the meaning of staying married. Please understand that it's our decision to leave each other. It has nothing to do with you. In fact, you and your sister are why we've been together for this long," the father answered.

Jeremy hung up and called his sister right away. Jessica was not happy about the news. "What? They can't do that!" she said angrily and called her father. "What do you mean you're getting a divorce? You two are not only stupid but also irresponsible. You love each other and have to stay together! I'm booking plane tickets right now. Jeremy and I are coming home, and we'll deal with it together as a family!" Jessica shouted.

The old man hung up the phone and turned to his wife. "Our plan worked. Both of them are coming home for Thanksgiving. What should we say to make them come home for Christmas?" The old man said.

When living or traveling in a foreign country, you may see some cultural differences. It's always a good idea to understand these differences to avoid doing or saying something wrong.

Some misunderstandings happen because of the way people use the language. For example, in Taiwan and Japan, people are taught to be humble when they talk about themselves. However, in the United States, it's common for a person to show off his or her abilities in order to get noticed. So, if you're interviewed to get a job in the States, tell them what you can do as much as possible.

_____ In Eastern Asia, it is common not to make eye contact with someone while speaking to him or her. However, to a Westerner, doing this could make you look like the person who is always lying. Also, the use of gestures can also cause misunderstandings. The thumbs-up sign means "well done" in the West but can be impolite in parts of the Middle East. In the West, putting your middle finger up is very rude, but in Vietnam, the middle finger is often used to point at things. Different countries have different culture, so just respect and follow them when you are there. As the old saying goes, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."

Dear Sir or Madam,

For the past years, I've shopped at Nature's Furniture because the prices you have are good and the products you sell are of the highest quality. What's more, I enjoy the help your workers give everyone in the store.

Well, I did until last week. When I asked one of the clerks for some help with a table, he just told me he was busy. When I asked him some questions about a sofa, he didn't even listen to me. About ten minutes later, I asked him again, and he shouted, "Go back to your country and leave me alone!"

I have never been treated that way before. I'm sad to say that you've lost a customer.

Sincerely,
Hakeem Jabar

Party animals mean people who enjoy going to parties very much. For them, having a drink after work or going to parties are wonderful. In fact, people are not the only animals that enjoy a taste for alcohol. These days, scientists have found that many animals love the taste of alcohol, and aye-ayes and Rhesus monkeys are two of them. A study from Dartmouth College showed that aye-ayes, found in Madagascar, always picked the food with the most alcohol. Aye-ayes are able to break down alcohol 40 times faster than other animals. That means they can have alcohol and don't get drunk terribly. They like food with alcohol for two reasons. First, the strong smell helps them find food easily. Second, it has more calories, and that gives them more energy in the wild. Another study also showed us a few surprises. When Rhesus monkeys live alone or at the end of the day, they drink like people do after a long day of work. Now, enjoy after-work drinks? You are not alone.

If you have to ask Why me?
When you are feeling really blue,
When the world has turned against you,
And you don't know what to do,
When it pours colossal raindrops,
Without an umbrella beside you,
The rain makes you all wet,
But nothing you can do.

When the sun is not shining,
When the stars look like crying,
When you want to be
In your bed,
Pull the cover
Above your head,
When life is something
That you dread,
And you have to ask Why me?...

Then when the world seems right and true,
When rain has left a pretty dew,
When you feel happy being you,
Please ask yourself, Why me? then, too.
