五、克漏字測驗 (每題 2 分, 共 6 分)

Hi, I'm Eddie. I went to Taiwan as an exchange student last year, and now I'm back to France. Today, I'm going to share an interesting story about my life in Taipei.

People in Taiwan often use hand gestures to express numbers, and the hand gestures from number six to ten are different from the French. I didn't know that 35. once my friends and I went to a restaurant. The waiter asked us, " 36. " and I answered three in hand gestures, but he led us to a table for eight.

I felt strange, but I didn't say anything. Then 37. of my friends told me that was because of my hand gestures. When the waiter asked me the question, I showed him my thumb, index finger, and middle finger. And that means eight in Taiwan. Isn't that interesting?

Dear Diary,

This afternoon I played basketball with my friends after school. My ankles were really hurt while I was going to jump. I couldn't even walk at that time. When I took the metro home, I still didn't feel well.

It was rush hour. The MRT was full of people. People were pushing each other to get on the MRT. I couldn't find any seat. Later, I found nobody sat on the priority seat. I sat on it to take a rest, but other passengers looked at me. They thought about why I could sit on the special seat. Then, a man was very angry and shouted at me. He told me "You shouldn't sit on it because this is for people in need and you looked like a young, strong boy." I felt very sad. I stood up slowly and rolled up my pants. All the other passengers could see my hurt ankles clearly at this moment. They became quiet, and I sat back again.

I heard a lot but never thought this would happen to me. The priority seats are for people with special needs. It is a good thing to give the seats to those people. But sometimes, when people sit on the priority seats, other passengers would say that they don't think of others and ask them to stand up. I don't know why now more people believe in what they see but ignore the real facts. Do people do this only because those people look normal? But maybe they need the seat more than you think. To sit or not to sit, that is the question.

Car Free Day takes place on September 22 every year. It is an international event that encourages people to be more eco-friendly in their lives. Instead of driving alone in their cars, people are asked to get around by using green ways of transport.

One way Taiwan celebrates Car Free Day is with Green Connections. This activity lets people write in about their green ways of choice. It can be anything from taking the bus or metro to bicycling and walking. In fact, carpooling and working from home count, too. All these ways are lighter on our wallets and the environment than driving alone.

Everyone is welcome to join Green Connections and share how they celebrate Car Free Day online. Anyone who does may win some great prizes.

If you are already car free, then you are helping to make the air cleaner and traffic better. The next step is to get more people to do the same. That way, we can make Car Free Day an even bigger success!
